COMMENTS AND OPPOSITION OF THE
NEW JERSEY DIVISION OF RATE COUNSEL

On April 24, 2008, the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC" or "Commission") conditionally granted AT&T's and BellSouth's (collectively AT&T) petitions for forbearance from 47 U.S.C. 220(a)(2) of the Act and various rules, including the following: 47 CFR 32.23 (nonregulated activities); 47 CFR 32.27 (transactions with affiliates); 47 CFR part 64, subpart I (allocation of costs); 47 CFR part 36 (jurisdictional separations procedures); 47 CFR part 69, subparts D and E (cost apportionment); and other related cost assignment rules. The Commission referred to the statutory provision and Commission rules from which AT&T sought forbearance collectively as the "Cost Assignment Rules." The grant was expressly conditioned on, among other things, the Wireline Competition Bureau's approval of a compliance plan to be filed by AT&T describing in detail how it will continue to fulfill its statutory and regulatory obligations.¹

On May 23, 2008, Verizon filed a request with the Commission seeking comparable relief and stated, among other things:

The Commission's rationale in granting AT&T forbearance compels extending the same relief to Verizon and Qwest. Like AT&T, Verizon and Qwest are federal price cap carriers, and thus on the federal level there is no link between Verizon and Qwest's costs and customer rates. Also like AT&T, Verizon and Qwest could file a compliance plan to address the forbearance conditions the Commission imposed in the AT&T Order.²

The Verizon/Qwest Request inappropriately seeks to "ride the coattails" of AT&T's petition and does not pass muster as a formal request for forbearance. Furthermore the Verizon/Qwest Request comes amidst significant regulatory and legal uncertainty about the AT&T Order. Last month, Sprint Nextel Corporation ("Sprint Nextel"), Ad Hoc Telecommunications Users Committee ("Ad Hoc"), Comptel, and Time Warner Telecom Inc. ("Time Warner") submitted a petition for reconsideration of the Commission's AT&T Order,³ which is pending Commission review. Also, earlier this week, the National Association of State Utility Consumer Advocates ("NASUCA") appealed the Commission's AT&T Order in the United States Court of Appeals for the D.C.Circuit.⁴ Furthermore, Time Warner, Comptel, and Sprint Nextel have recommended that the compliance plan that the Commission has required AT&T to submit be subject to public comment.⁵ With this backdrop of regulatory and legal uncertainty about the Commission's AT&T forbearance order, the Commission now seeks comment on the issues raised by Verizon's request on behalf of itself and on behalf of Qwest that the Commission grant them the same forbearance as it granted on April 24, 2008 to AT&T.⁶ The New Jersey Division of Rate Counsel ("Rate Counsel")⁷ urges the Commission to deny Verizon's request.

The uncertain outcome of the pending motions, the fundamental departure from and jettisoning of cost assignment rules, which are of paramount importance to state and federal regulators and consumer advocates for protecting consumers from the exercise of market power, and the brevity of the Verizon/Qwest Request are compelling reasons for the Commission to deny the "me-too" request.⁸ The existing process for forbearance petitions should not be short-circuited. Rate Counsel objects strenuously to extending the

AT&T decision on a “me-too” basis to Verizon and to Qwest. Instead, the Commission should review the pending requests for forbearance based on the statutory time line.⁹

Verizon’s “me-too” request is yet further evidence that forbearance requests often raise matters that potentially affect many incumbent local exchange carriers, and that, therefore, these matters would be aired more appropriately in a rulemaking informed by the recommendations of a federal-state joint board. Rate Counsel continues to urge the Commission to recognize the wide-reaching implications of forbearance petitions for consumers and for competitors in a broader forum than in a proceeding in which it examines the merits of single petitions.¹⁰

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission should deny the Verizon/Qwest Request.
